WESTCHESTER AUTHORITIES EX-ERCISE INCREASED VIGILANCE.

ienry Fittner Arrested for Settling-Archie timmer, Big Tim Sullivan's Trainer. Taken In by Mistake, Also Wally Fessenden-Admission to the Bay Is 82

The Westchester authorities were still very ch on the alert at Empire City yesterda ffernoon, with the result that speculation on the races was reduced to a minimum. ad his deputies were particularly active One of them saw a man named Henry Flitner and to be in the employ of Tom Shaw, a well known operator, go into the Western Union Telegraph office in the old betting ring and ign a check. He was immediately placed der arrest, charged with settling wagers nd when searched at the station house nea y, a number of addressed envelopes, empty, tere found upon him. also $4,139 in cash Flitner furnished bail in the sum of $500 and came back to the track. Meanwhile the men invaded the telegraph office and notified the manager in charge that in eir opinion the place was being used for he settlement of wagers and that if the practice was not stopped somebody would get into serious trouble. The manager denied the accusation but for a time was inclined not to handle even newspaper matter. Later the Pinkertons placed a censor in charge of the office and all messages were held up ten

The surprise of the day came when Archie Zimmer, well known as the trainer of horses owned by Big Tim Sullivan, Larry Mulligan and H. B. Duryea, was arrested on a warrant which was served by a Yonkers plain clothes man. Zimmer, who saddled Sir Toddington, the winner of the first race, was receiving ongratulations from his friends when the detective stepped up to him and said: Come along with me to the station house

What for?" gasped Zimmer. "You're a bookmaker," was the quick re-You've made a mistake, my friend," said "I never made book in my life.

I am a trainer,"
"You're the man I want and this warrant for you, so come along."
By this time a good natured crowd had prounded Zimmer and the sleuth and the ner came in for a lot of joshing. Zimmer sked for time to dig up a bondsman and also requested the detective to hire an autoobile in which he could ride to the police tation. Mike Leonard, a Harlem blackmith, was finally induced to go along with who was released in the sum of Zimmer, who was released in the sum of comment that the facts were given to As-sistant District Attorney Weeks, who was clubhouse. When Mr. Weeks was in formed as to who really had been arrested he said that there was no doubt that it was a case of mistaken identity. Mr. Weeks said that a warrant had been issued for a man who bore a name similar to Zimmer's and serving the warrant the detective who got the evidence had made an error in inting out the trainer to his brother sleuth Just after Zimmer had been taken in, there ore fun making over the arrest of W. C. nden, a well known track patron. Fes den was once a National League baseball mpire, but gave up that job to become a turfman. He owned a horse named Pass Book, who won at Jamaica several years ago at 100 to 1. Fessenden was charged with being a bookmaker. He was bailed out by Bill Daly, it was said.

Edward Meyer was arrested by a deputy sheriff for accepting and recording bets, it was said, and Edward Gaines, a member of Schuyler L. Parsons of the Coney Island lockey Club was at the track, acting as a steward. He announced that it had been decided to reduce the price of admission to the Sheepshead Bay track, beginning to-morrow, to $2, and that the field enclosure would not be open to the public. stood that all members of the Metropolitan Turf Association, the bookmakers' organization, have been notified that if they attempt to do any business at the Bay track they will be promptly ejected. The Pinkertons have received orders to prevent all kinds of speculation and they are prepared to carry out this order to the letter. It was rumored yesterday that if it was found that betting could not be suppressed at the Bay to-morrow the track would be closed to the public on off in private. That the Coney Island Jockey Club is sincere in its determination to run the fall meeting entirely without speculation there is little doubt, but racegoers say that the sport will be conducted in the presence of a mere handful of spectators. Owners of horses layers will obey the order of the track man-agement so that the meeting can be run off according to schedule.

James Butler and the other managers the Empire City meeting have done all in their power to assist the Westchester authorities in enforcing the betting law. authorities, including officials in the District Attorney's office, say that the track managers have been of much assistance to them.

The Yonkers meeting will wind up to-day and it was said last night that the associatio would foot up losses to the extent of nearly $40,000 instead of a smaller amount, as at first estimated.

Starter Mars Cassidy, after being exposed to the elements on Wednesday, went home sick and yesterday it was reported that he was threatened with pneumonia. C. H. Pettingill handled the barrier in his absence and did good work.

squette showed that he is a remarkable coit when he ran second to Magazine in the Fleetwing Handicap. He was beaten a head by Brother Jonathan in the Melrose Stakes, at a mile and a half, on Wednesday after a gruelling race, so that few thought he had a chance to be even in the money in yesterday's race. His owner but up Yorke, Bill Dely's apprentice, but that did not keep the coit from running a bang up race. He might have won, too, with a little better luck just after the start. Roseben was scratched out of this event at the last moment because Trainer Weir did not think he could win in the beavy going.

Sir Toddington, 9 to 5, led all the way in the first event, at a mile, and won by a length from the rapidly closing Lally, 8 to 1. The latter got up to beat Killlecrankie, 12 to 1, a head. The time was 1.46 1-5.

Although he was shut off in the backstretch Bird of Flight II., 2 to 1, was much the beat in the second race, for maiden two-year-olds, five and a half furlongs, for he went to the outside on the turn and came home a handy winner by a length in 1.09 3-5. Nealon, 10 to 1, stood a drive and got the place by a head from Yankee Daughter, 5 to 2. The latter came from nowhere. My Mariutch, 4 to 1, led for a part of the way and then exploded.

In spite of the fact that Arondack, 11 to 1e, stumbled and lost much ground just before she reached the far turn, she came again with a fine turn of speed and won the flifth race, for two-year-olds, six furlongs, by three parts of a length in 1:17. Dander, 7 to 2, got the place from lawton Wignins, 13 to 5, by two lengths. The latter led for nearly five furlongs, but backed up, as he did not relish the going.

Dark Night, 7 to 5, led for a quarter of the distance in the last race, at a mile and a sixteenth, but Cymbal, 3 to 1, closed resolutely and beat him a length and a half in a drive. Rockstone, 4 to 1, was a poor third. The race was run fin 1:54. Three favorites were successful and Bergen rode two winners. The attendance was about 5,000. The summaries:

WILL SMITH LEADS GOLFERS

The defeat of King Cobalt, odds on favorite. HAS A CARD OF 159 IN BLUSTERY WEATHER.

> First Day's Play in Spen Championship at Myopia Results in Fine Scores Under Adverse Conditions - Home Professional Second and Alex Smith Third.

HAMILTON, Mass., Aug. 27.—Despite a terrific gale the fourteenth annual championship of the United States Golf Association proseeded as calmly to-day on the Myopia course as a painted ship on a painted ocean Scots have not been used to the wind since they were quite unable, with but one or two very notable exceptions, to slice or pull and so cheat the force of the blow.

There were forty-eight players left in for to-morrow's round, the smallest number to survive for the final round of this com-petition. Of those in the first eleven Boston claims five, the New York district three, the Chicago clubs two, and one hails from Mexico. The leader of the day was Will Smith, an American open champion of 1899, who for some years has been the professional at the Country Club of Mexico City. He had made the long journey to compete, and he acquitted himself worthily, making a score which, under the weather conditions, could hardly have been surpassed by James Braid or

Harry Vardon. Starting for his first round somewhat before noon, Smith at once began an ex-hibition of strength and skill to open the eyes of the onlookers. Taking a three to start with, he played par golf to the sixth hole, where another three was recorded. Now came a hole on which he lost a stroke on a pulled drive, but on the eighth, of 460 yards, he gave a display of the game that was most brilliant. He was eight feet past the hole on his second shot. Putting up boldly, the ball circled the cup, but failed to

On the ninth hole, which although 140 yards was a hard one to play on account the wind on the exposed green, the Mexico professional ran down a long put for two. This made his outward round 35 Coming in he displayed great consistency 35 Coming in he displayed great consistency and finished in 41.

In the afternoon he made absolutely no mistakes except one, which was of a ludicrous nature, for on the short hole on which he had a two in the morning an overplayed approach caused him to take a five. The afternoon round of $2 brought Will Smith's total for the day to 159. This exhibition of golf in such adverse conditions of wind was a great performance. He was three strokes better than the next man, who was John Jones, the professional of the Myopia course and who knows every inch of it like a book.

book. If the skies had been as blue and the breeze If the skies had been as blue and the breezes as calm as on the preceding days of the week there is little doubt but that 77 would have been beaten. "To-morrow," said Herbert C. Leeds as the golfers were leaving the green this evening, "I have no doubt that 74 will be made."

On duty as officials were Daniel Chauncey, president of the U. S. G. A.; W. Fellowes Morgan, S. Y. Heebner, Aleck Britton, Herbert Jacques, Lawrence Curtis, Charles B. McDonald, G. Herbert Windeler and G. F. Willet.

bert Jacques, Lawrence Curtis, Charles B. McDonald, G. Herbert Windeler and G. F. Willet.

An incident of the morning which attracted great attention was the splendid outward journey of Jack Jones, the Myopia professional. Aided by a 2 on the hinth hole he was out in 37. "It is all over now," said Jones as he went to the next tee. He nearly made good on the joke for he played every stroke thereafter for its full value and he ended the day only three strokes behind the leader. Third in the race was Alex Smith, open champion of 1906 and brother of the Mexican.

At 163 Aleck Smith's score was not brilliant for him. On the other hand Fred MeLeod of Chicago, who scored 164, deserves every praise for his wonderful recoveries from difficulties, so that although a stroke higher his card was deemed somewhat higher in quality than that of the famous Aleck. Gilbert Nicholls, who came next on the list with 166, ha' a very mediocre round in the morning, but in the afternoon he made a score which equalled Willie Smith's best round.

So much for the leaders in the race. As to odd happenings, Tom McNamars of the Wallaston Goif Club deserves great credit for being right among the leaders with the score of 167, and he made the best showing of the amateurs, but it was a very disappointing one, his card being 90, 83—173. The high wind was too much for Trav's to conquer. Next to him was Eben M. Byers, also a former champion, who was some half a dozen strokes higher.

Whatever of international interest had been expected from the entry of H. W. Bever-Whatever of international interest had been expected from the entry of H. W. Beveridge, the old Oxford and Cambridge golfer, went up in a balloon when he took 103 for the first round. H. H. Barker the English amateur who has turned professional, did very teur who has turned professional, did very little better.

Of the four Canadians—Barrett, Cummings, Locke and Sawyer—the most brilliant achievement was a 27 recorded by Barrett coming in. One of the best plays of the day was a 4, by Jack Hutchinson in the morning against the wind on the 455 yard second hole. To show the vagaries of the game he required nine strokes for this hole in the afternoon.

Horace Rawlins, the first holder of the American open championship, was one of those ruled out by the statute of limitations. He was in a statistical mood and he figured that in 173 strokes he had taken 81 puts.

Besides I ravis the amateurs left in for the third round are J. J. Hylan, J. G. Anderson and Hugo R. Johnstobe. This was three Bostonians and one New Yorker. Coupled with his somewhat wild driving the wind wrough his putting was excellent.

As to the present open champion, Aleck Ress, his game was marked by a lack of vim. While no rault could be found with any particular shot, taken as a whole his performance was not nearly as good as had been expected.

Wille Anderson, four times winner of the ance was not nearly as good as had been expected.

Willie Anderson, four times winner of the open title, was also in a state of golfing decrepitude. Putting was his weakness and in the afternoon he took no less than four puts on three different greens, yet he was off the course but once. When the open was last played at Myopla in 1905 Willie Anderson was seven strokes behind the leader on the first day, yet he won out for the title. This time with many more strokes to make up he seems to be confronted by an insurmountable task.

Only those who made 182 or better will continue to-morrow. This made necessary a new arrangement of partners under which Walter Fovargue and Willie Anderson will open the ball at 9 o'clock, while Willie Smith will start an hour later in company with David Honeyman.

The scores follow:

NEW YORKS LOSE TO THE CUBS CHAMPIONS BUNCH THEIR RUNS

Chicago Turns Out a Vast Crowd of Rooters to See the Battle-Pirates Win a Game New That McGrawites Have Gone -Brooklyns and Bostons Beat Rivals.

IN TWO INNINGS.

The New York Nationals resumed their pennant fight in Chicago yesterday and found the Cubs all primed and waiting for them. The game was won by the champions, but there is bound to be a setback now and then for the New Yorks, for leaders cannot go along with smooth sailing all the time. The New Yorks still have a hopeful margin to work on to come back in first place, and they work on to come back in historians, and they have won nine out of twelve games in the West, which is pretty good going. With the New Yorks out of the way the Pittsburgs bucked up and landed a victory. They defeated the Phillies: The Brooklyns had a stiff battle with the Cardinals, but finished. shead. The Bostons won from the Cincin-natis handily. The results: Chicago, 5: New York, 1.

CHICAGO (N. L.), 5: NEW YORK (N. L.) 1. CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—In the presence of a gigantic throng of howling fans Chicago the games that will have an important bear-ing on the National League flag. When the smoke had died away the New Yorks were beaten, but deflant and fun of fight, while the Cubs, winners by a decisive score, were carried off the field by their admirers. It was a hard fought game and both the left

All the luck broke with the Cubs, and two strong batting rallies by the New Yorks were choked by sudden double plays. One of these plays coming when Pflester seemed to be fading away was a pure accident, but helped to kill off the New Yorks just the

The crowd was something beyond imaginathe tribes came pouring in. By 3 o'clock the public had swarmed upon the grass, packed up to the lines, and invaded every foot of ground, while thousands more were crushing in and still more were struggling at the gates. Ground rules, of course, had to be put into effect—two bases on a drive There were wild yells of glee from th

New York contingent when Doyle singled in the first round, but the yells died down to a whisper when Tinker and Evers pivoted perfectly in a lightning double play. Three perfectly in a lightning double play. Three Cubs in succession gave easy chances to Doyle. The second inning was attended by a step of a miraculous kind by Tinker, who got Seymour's whack with one hand—an outright robbery. Devlin singled and stole second, but Barry lined to Tinker. Evers began Chicago's half with a beauteous drive to left. Steinfieldt, not even trying to sacrifice sent a ponty to Barry on the first half fice, sent a pop fly to Barry on the first ball pitched. Evers stole second and the next two were easy.

With ope gone in the third, Wiltse hit into the heart of the throbbing public-a two bagger. Two hard chances were then gobbled up by Chance and Howard. Kling started the Cub half with a low liner which upset Devlin. Pflester fanned. Then Hof-man's smash staggered Doyle. It would have been a sure double play if he had held it. Somebody threw a cushion at Tenney just then, and the crowd suggested hanging the miscreant. Sheckard lofted to Donlin, Kling taking third. Then a double steal was tried and failed. Tenney penning Kling in and nailing him with ease. There was great nerriment in the fourth when Donlin fanned Seymour beat out a grounder and stole second while the Cubs were yowling about a called ball. Devlin popped to Tinker. With one out in Chicago's half Evers hit a policeman in left field—two bases, Crash went Steinfeldt's drive to right. Don-lin fumbled and Evers rushed in amid noises that resembled all the boiler works in the universe. Kling connected for a mighty home run into the swarming myriads, but under the ground rules had to go back to second, Tinker returning to third. Steinfeldt, however, scored, and the Cubs had two ounts when the inning closed.

The fifth inning was ushered in by Barry with a sharp hit to left. Bridwell hit to third, and Evers muffed Steinfeldt's throw. To make maters worse Plester threw wildly past second and both runners moved up. Wiltse's fly to Hofman brought Barry to the plate, but Tenney fanned, and Howard, diving forward, made a dazzling catch of Doyle's low liner. Hofman came up for the Cubs and plate, but Tenney fanned, and Howard, diving forward, made a dazzling catch of Doyle's low liner. Hofman came up for the Cubs and wha'ed one past short. Sheckard drew a pass. Chance beat out a bunt and as he passed first stepped on Doyle, who was covering the base. The ball got away and Hofman scored. Evers grounded to 'lenney and Steinfeldt sent a terrine smite to left, scoring Sheckard and Chance. Steiny then stole second, Howard grounded to Doyle and Bridwell took care of Tinker. Three runs, and the arena was a twin to eleven bug houses.

Bresnahan opened the sixth with a dextrous swat. Evers had a doubte play in sight on Donlin's roller, but sat down on the ball and was lucky to get Michael. The next two were easy. Up came Kling, and the ball sailed into the crowd. Pflester's attempt to sacrifice retired Kling at third, and there was nothing doing for runs.

With two out in the seventh Wiltse hit safely, but Tenney was gentle as a zephyr. The Cubs went out one, two, three. In this inning Bresnahan charged into the crowd for a foul, and the fans hurled him back.

New York started trouble in the eighth when Doyle singled and Bresnahan walked. Donlin hit to Steinfeldt, who tried for Doyle and missed him. The bases were filled and nobody was out. Seymour popped to Steinfeldt, and then came the weindest play of the afternoon. Devlin dodged a wide, high one. The ball struck his bat and bounded outward. Pflester, with a gasp of surprise, put out his hand and the ball fell in. A double play ensued. That was enough to break anybody's heart, and the New Yorks seemed dazed.

One down in the ninth, Bridwell drove safely past short. McCormick went up for Wiltse, though Wiltse had been killing the ball, and drew a pass. Tenney grounded to Tinker and it all devolved on Doyle. He rolled to Evers, and the first game of the series went to the Cubs.

While the New Yorks worked vigorously, they did not seem to have the smap and dash that marked their work of the Pittsburg series, but it must be said that the break of his time drive were things that nobody had a right to do, and each of these feats saved at least one run.

The disappointment of the day, to McGraw and his men, was Wiltse. It was expected that the left hander would mow down the Cubs, who are supposed to be weak in front of a port wheeler. On the contrary, they almost beat him to death. The long hits credited to the Cubs were not made so by the crowd, but were actually shortened. On one drive by Kling the batsman made a clear circuit ahead of the ball and declared that it had not gone into the crowd, but the umpire ruled against him and sent him back to second.

McGraw was annoyed, but not frightened. I didn't expect Wiltse to get such a beating, said he after the game, and I did think we could hit more effectively against Pflester, Still, we were pretty tired from our ride, and the strain of taking those four games from Pittsburg evidently had a reaction. To morrow is an open day. We will rest up and get back all our steam. I think I will take the boys on an excursion out into the woods somewhere for the day. Then on Saturday Matty will pitch, and we will win sure as fate. The flag's all right and is as good as cinched for the Polo Grounds.

Chance and his tribe are wildly exuberant and think they will stop Mathewson cold. "We are hitting," said the Chicago manager.

"and that is what gets the games. If we can hit a left hander as hard as we did Wiltse, we will hit Matty or any other right hander. One of the New York officials said after the game that New York was paid for 24,850

BROOKLYN, 2' ST. LOUIS (N. L.), 1. ST. Louis. Aug. 27.—Despite strenuous objections by the Cardinals in the ninth inning the Brooklyns took the opening game of the series this afternoon, 2 to 1. Donovan's team won the game cleverly enough up to that final inning, as two runs were picked up in the sixth and eighth innings without any particular trouble while Wilhelm was making the Carditrouble while Wilhelm was making the Cardinals do some ineffective guessing.

The final inning began with a single on the part of Ludwig. Hostetter batted for Beebe and he dropped a fly just back of first base, where it could not be reached; this going for a single. Moran went in to run for Ludwig at this stage and Lush took Hostetter's place at first. Shaw bunted toward first and he was safe at that point by a narrow margin, filling up the bases. Charles drove a bounder over second base for a single and Moran came home. Lush concluded to try for home also, but as he rounded third dilbert grabbed him and tried to throw him back on the bag. After the mixup he could not reach the bag and went out. Murray hit to Alperman and was out at first. Wilhelm issely walked Konetchy and Delehanty rolled to Alperman. The
